Introduction

Norfolk County Council wants Norfolk to be a county where businesses, organisations and communities work together to create a better place to work and live in.

Our business plan, Together, for Norfolk, sets out how we are planning to grow our economy, manage development and achieve better futures and outcomes for everyone who lives and works here.

Day to day, we provide services to give children and young people the best start in life, support vulnerable and older people, maintain our highways and transport network, provide library, waste disposal and fire services and work in partnership to grow the economy.

We are currently delivering these services in a changing financial climate that has seen a huge amount of money taken out of local government since 2010. Like all councils, we have come to the end of a long-term funding deal and are awaiting announcements from Government about the level of funding we can expect in the future.

Although we are faced with financial uncertainty we are not sitting back and doing nothing. We have been investing the money we do have on making our services more efficient, keeping families together and helping vulnerable people remain independent. We continue to ask the Government for fairer funding, a better way to pay for social care for older people and more investment in transport links and broadband so that we can help grow our local economy.

Making decisions about how we spend your money is never easy. We have focused our budget on the needs of vulnerable people by increasing the proportion of our budget we spend on social care for children and adults. However, as demand is rising all the time this increase is still not enough to stop our services feeling the squeeze. Even increasing council tax, by the amount we're allowed to without a local referendum, won't balance our budget. There are statutory services we need to protect and a limited choice of where savings can be made. This means we must find around £40m savings in savings in 2020-21.

By listening to our residents we know what services you value. And by developing our budget proposals in line with residents' priorities and our strategy of changing services to make them more efficient, we can make most of the savings we need without directly affecting services.

We now want to hear your views on our council tax and budget approach to help our elected councillors agree a balanced budget for next year.

Together, for Norfolk

We have three outcomes in our Together, for Norfolk plan:

Growing economy

We want Norfolk to be a place that stands out for impressive growth, sustainable housing, good connectivity, strong infrastructure and skills for the future.

Thriving people

We want families and people of all ages to be independent, resilient and well throughout their lives.

Strong communities

We want to make Norfolk a better place to live.

Background to council tax

Council tax helps pay for local services and applies to all domestic properties whether owned or rented. How much you pay depends on the valuation band of your property. The responsibility to pay council tax usually lies with the occupier.

Each organisation that provides services in your area sets their own proportion of the council tax bill you receive. These are:

- Norfolk County Council
- your district council
- your parish council (if you have one)
- Norfolk Police

In this consultation we will be asking you about Norfolk County Council's share of the council tax. This is currently made up of two parts – general council tax, and an amount that is ring-fenced for adult social care which is called the adult social care precept.

Our council tax proposals

To help us deal with our cost pressures and invest in vital services we are proposing to raise general council tax by 1.99% in 2020/21.

Most of the money that you pay as part of Norfolk County Council's share of the council tax helps fund the costs of all the services provided by the council and is not linked to specific services. The maximum amount that government currently says that we can increase this 'general' council tax by without having to hold a local referendum is 2%. It is possible that in the future the government could allow councils greater freedom to increase this general council tax by more than 2%.

To help us maintain our adult social care services we are proposing to raise the adult social care precept by 2% in 2020/21.

Adult social care services are those that support older people, disabled people and people with mental health problems. These services help people to stay safe in their own homes and continue to be independent.

Where this is not possible, adult social care can support people in residential care. In 2019/20 our gross budget for adult social services is £427.598m.

In 2015 the government gave councils like Norfolk the opportunity to raise council tax to help pay for adult social care services – this is called the adult social care precept. The money we raise from the adult social care precept is ringfenced which means that we can only spend it on adult social care services.

As part of the process of setting our budget we have to report to government and confirm that we use the money we receive from this precept solely for adult social care services.

Initially councils could raise council tax by up to an extra 2% a year for the period 2016/17 to 2019/20. Then, in 2016 the government announced that for the three years from 2017/18 to 2019/20, councils would be allowed to increase the adult social care precept by up to 3% a year, but no more than 6% in total over that period. Norfolk County Council took the decision to increase the adult social care precept by 3% in 2017/18 and 3% in 2018/19. This meant that in 2019/20 we did not increase the adult social care precept but continued to collect the existing precept and spend this on adult social care.

In its spending round on 4 September 2019 the government announced that councils could increase the adult social care precept by up to 2% in 2020/21.

The effect our proposals would have

In 2019/20 our council tax charge for a Band D home was £1,362.24 and £96.05 of this was the adult social care precept. If both our proposals went ahead we would increase council tax by a total of 3.99%. This would mean:

- In 2020/21 our council tax charge for a Band D home would be £1,416.51 and £123.21 of this would be the adult social care precept.
- A typical Band D home would see an annual increase of £54.27 for the year, that's £1.04 per week. We've based our budget proposals for 2020/21 on the assumption that council tax will increase overall by 3.99%. If we do not increase council tax, then we would have to find around an extra £16.3m in savings.

Our budget approach 2020-21

At our Cabinet Meeting on 7 October we outlined all our saving proposals for 2020-21.

We are proposing to save £1.6 million through making our internal processes more modern, efficient and business-like.

We are also proposing to make savings in departments. Over the next few pages you can find out more about our approach to making savings and a list of the savings proposed.

This year none of our outline budget proposals need to go out to further public consultation at this stage as none of them directly impact on service delivery. However, if once the budget is agreed and the Council starts to implement the proposals we discover that any of the proposals do impact on delivering services, then we may need to carry out detailed consultation on those proposals in the future.

We welcome any comments you have, either about our general approach or any individual savings proposals.

Business transformation

We want to carry out our work and deliver services to the people of Norfolk as efficiently as possible. This helps us save money.

We are making the way we work more efficient through our Smarter Working programme. This involves managing demand for our services, being business-like and using digital technology to make sure we get value for money. We are also joining our work up so that it is done once and done well and using evidence and data to target our work where it can make the most difference.

Our budget proposals for this year concentrate on using digital technology to become more efficient, modern and business-like. We are also proposing to make the most of our properties, make sure our staff are in the right locations to deliver our services and make our traded services more commercial.

Adult social services

We want to support people to be independent, resilient and well. Our strategy to do this is called Promoting Independence. We are working to support people earlier to prevent people reaching crisis point and to help people remain living in their home and community wherever possible. We are also focusing on people's strengths and making the most of the existing support they have, to help them keep independent in their local community.

As well making lives better for people, our approach has helped us save money. We are using this money to help us meet the increasing demands for social care across Norfolk.

Our budget proposals for this year concentrate on investing in services that help people to stay at home or safely return home after a stay in hospital which also costs less. We are also able to save money by joining up with other organisations in health and social care as commissioning services together makes things more efficient. Lastly, if we have assessed someone and need to meet their care needs, we want them to have more choice about the services they can use. This helps us get better value for money.

Children's services

Like most councils we are working in very challenging times and have a strategy in place to transform our services to meet the needs of children and families in Norfolk.

A key part of our strategy is to invest more money in keeping families together and providing better care. This makes families lives better as well as saving us money. Our approach is already paying off as we are seeing fewer children coming into care and fewer children being placed in services outside Norfolk.

Our budget proposals for this year follow this successful strategy of investing in services to prevent future demand. We will continue to work closely with our partners to make sure services are better joined up and more efficient. We also propose investing in a range of new services that offer alternatives to placing children in care. Lastly, we want to explore new ways of doing things. By better understanding the needs of children and families we can commission new and more efficient services which lead to positive changes in their lives.

Community and environment services

All our services have a vital role in making Norfolk a better place to live, work and visit. Our services are key in making sure that people are safe, both in their own homes and when out and about in the county.

Because these services are so varied we are taking several different approaches to save money and balance our budget.

Having said that, several of our budget proposals have things in common. Where possible we are looking to see where we can reduce costs, we are working with others so that our services become more cost efficient and we are developing services that help us increase our income.

Public health

Although Public Health is part of our CES department we have listed these budget proposals separately. That's because Public Health receive a separate grant for their work from the Government and so we report on their budget in a different way.

This year we are taking the same approach to budget proposals in Public Health as with other services in CES. In particular we are adjusting our budget in line with the money we actually spend on some of our services.

Other services

All our departments have put forward budget proposals, including our Strategy and Governance teams and Finance and Commercial Services.

Both departments work hard to support our front-line services.

Budget proposals for this year focus on cutting our spending, reviewing staffing and making a one-off saving from our budget for organisational change and redundancy.

How we will make our decision and report back to you

We will take a report about the findings to this consultation to our Cabinet on 13 January 2020. The report will feed back what people have told us about the potential impact of our proposals. The feedback will also be reported at Full Council on 17 February 2020.

Our county councillors will consider the consultation responses we receive very carefully. In particular, they will take into account:

- The impact of any proposal on individuals, groups or communities and in particular on people identified as having 'protected characteristics' under the Equality Act 2010. The protected characteristics are: age; disability; gender reassignment; pregnancy and maternity; race; religion or belief; sex; and sexual orientation. As well as this equality impact assessment, councillors will consider the impact of proposals on rural areas
- The views of people and stakeholders consulted
- The evidence of need and what is proven to work effectively and well
- The financial and legal positions and any constraints at the time
- Any potential alternative options, models or ideas for making the savings.

Your opinions are valuable to us. Thank you for taking the time to read this and respond.

Q. Please use this space to tell us if you do not want all or part of your response to be made public (i.e. published verbatim in our report) or shared with councillors. Specifically state which parts you wish us to keep confidential.
